Drayton currently serves as the Head Coach of the Kitchener Jr. Rangers U14 AAA team, where he leads the program with a clear vision centered on development, accountability, and competitive excellence. After previously contributing as an assistant coach within the organization, Drayton now guides the team's overall structure, culture, and performance standards.

His coaching philosophy is built on discipline, preparation, and daily habits that translate into game-ready execution. He emphasizes structured systems play, attention to detail, and a relentless compete level, ensuring his players are prepared mentally and physically for the demands of AAA hockey.

Passionate about long-term athlete development, Drayton focuses on building complete players, technically skilled, tactically aware, and physically prepared. While also fostering leadership, resilience, and character. He believes success is earned through consistent effort, accountability to teammates, and pride in representing the crest.

Under his leadership, the program strives to develop not only high-performing hockey players, but confident young leaders who positively impact their team, school, and community.
