Values / Philosophy:

As a head coach, my philosophy is built on a team-first mentality, where success is driven by the collective commitment of good people and great teammates. Talent alone doesn't win championships—character, accountability, and selflessness do. I believe in a structured, system-based approach to the game, where every player understands their role and responsibilities within a disciplined framework. A strong system provides the foundation for creativity; when players trust the structure, they gain the confidence to make dynamic plays without sacrificing team integrity.

Beyond team success, player development is also a top priority. I am committed to helping each athlete refine their skills, grow their hockey IQ, and prepare for the next level

Ultimately, my goal is to develop a culture where hard work, respect, and a relentless commitment to each other lead to both individual growth and team success.
